

's

Making Connections Thinkmark

Using what I know
(prior knowledge)
to help me understand
what I am reading.

Text to Self

*Something similar that happened
to me was...
I remember when I...*

Text to Text

*A book I read had a similar problem,
(character, setting)...
This is different than another book I read...*

Text to World

That reminds me of something I heard (read, saw) in the news...

As you Make Connections during
your reading, write the page
number you stopped on.

's

Making Connections Thinkmark

Using what I know
(prior knowledge)
to help me understand
what I am reading.

Text to Self

*Something similar that happened
to me was...
I remember when I...*

Text to Text

*A book I read had a similar problem,
(character, setting)...
This is different than another book I read...*

Text to World

*That reminds me of something I heard
(read, saw) in the news...*

As you Make Connections during
your reading, write the page
number you stopped on.

's

Making Connections Thinkmark

Using what I know
(prior knowledge)
to help me understand
what I am reading.

Text to Self

Connecting your own experiences to something that has happened in the text, helps you to have a deeper understanding of what you have read.

Text to Text

Thinking about other books that you have read that are similar or different than the text you are reading now.

Text to World

Remembering and connecting events or issues that have taken place in the world to what you are reading.

As you Make Connections during
your reading, write the page
number you stopped on.

's

Making Connections Thinkmark

Using what I know
(prior knowledge)
to help me understand
what I am reading.

Text to Self

Connecting your own experiences to something that has happened in the text, helps you to have a deeper understanding of what you have read.

Text to Text

Thinking about other books that you have read that are similar or different than the text you are reading now.

Text to World

Remembering and connecting events or issues that have taken place in the world to what you are reading.

As you Make Connections during
your reading, write the page
number you stopped on.